KENNEDY-SINCLAIRE PROGRAM GETS UNDERWAY

R. Patrick Spangler Re-Elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees

R. Patrick Spangler, the Shelby businessman who led the Gardner-Webb College Development Program for two years, has been re-elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees for the second consecutive year. Elected as Vice-Chairman was Lloyd C. Host of Shelby, a former chairman of the board. Boyce Grindstaff of Forest City is the new Secretary.

John R. Dover, III Re-elected Chairman of the Board of Advisors

John R. Dover, III of Shelby was re-elected Chairman of the Board of Advisors with John L. (Becky) Friday, Jr. of Cherryville as Vice-Chairman and Mrs. Patia L. Yelton of Shelby as Secretary and Treasurer.

District Alumni Meeting Was Held

The American Alumni Council held its District III, IV Conference in Raleigh, N.C., Jan. 20 - Feb. 2, following a line 26 - 30 "Annual Giving Institute." Mr. U. A. McManus, Director of Development attended.

The "Annual Giving Institute" and the "Editor's Workshop" featured numerous workshops in the area of alumni work. The AAC Conference is of tremendous importance to the alumni program, according to Mr. McManus. He states that in the Fall a living endowment giving program will be initiated among C-W alumni to coordinate centrally with the assistance given at the AAC being of great value in formulating the final plan.

One of the first workshops of the conference was "So You Want To Do An Annual Giving Campaign." This was led by Stanley R. McAnally, an AAC Representative and by Elizabeth Reed Wood of Sweet River College. Following Gardner-Webb alumni to be widely heard such as endowors, Mr. McManus enthusiastically participated in all phases.

Here's where it all started. For the more than 1,150 students who registered for second semester Dr. Garland Allen was the first man to get by in order to enter the registration process at the library. Data process and the experience of one semester for fresh study the experience was less painful for most students.

New Boards Have Huge Tasks Facing Them In Next Four Years

The Board of Trustees has taken first steps toward a possible multi-million dollar capital improvements program.

Meeting Monday, December 4, on the campus, the board authorized a feasibility study to begin in January 1969 on whether a capital improvements fund-raising effort should be begun.

If the study shows that such an effort is feasible, preliminary work toward a fall 1969 and spring 1970 campaigns might begin in July 1969.

Start of such a campaign would coincide with what the college hopes will be the first junior class. The school is attempting to gain four-year status, with the present freshman class as the first class in the senior college program.

Trustees, who re-elected R. Patrick Spangler of Shelby as chairman, also agreed to enter the Kennedy-Sinclair program that raises college fund-raiser and helps raise funds. The program, already used by 132 other colleges, would seek endowments and other funds, such as bequests.

In a related development, Spangler called for a $2 million capital improvements program in the next "two years of hard work."

College Administrators Attend N. J. Seminar

Gardner-Webb College has entered the Kennedy Sinclair Educational Gift Program as part of its growth in the area of financial development.

This is a continuous program directed by the Reverend U. A. McManus, director of development. The program is comprised of several parts: the distribution of motivating publications to the potential donors in order to stimulate them by pointing out the many tax advantages in making gifts, reaching wealthy donors through a suitable financial planning approach which benefits the donor and, hopefully, Gardner-Webb College, and working with professional people who handle this type of service such as trust officers and accountants.

Kennedy Sinclair Educational Gift planning is based on the fact that there are billions of dollars of accumulated wealth in this country which is now being "washed" through a failure of individuals of wealth to apply judicious estate planning.

Scores of schools are using this plan developed since 1950 by the Kennedy Sinclair organization.

Publications planning is underway and January 14-16, Mr. McManus and Dr. E. Eugene Passare, director of the college, attended a two-day Educational Gift Seminar in Saddle Brook, New Jersey. There Mr. McManus received extensive training in the field of financial planning techniques. Presidents of the participating institutions attended classes but did not handle so many details on their campuses.

Many regional colleges have reported success in this program. One of these is the University of South Carolina which reported $55,000 in cash gifts and $143,000 free will after four months of the brochure THE ECONOMY OF GIVING.

The Kennedy Sinclair approach takes into account that tax advantages are a prime motivating force. A study by The Bookings Institution revealed that 62 percent of all major gifts would not be made if all its deductibility were lost.

At a joint donor meeting of trustees and the Board of Advisors, Spangler said he believed the program could be accomplished and expressed optimism that we would become a senior college by 1971.

Spangler's program in the next two years would include a new entrance to the campus, a new chapel and auditorium, more lighting on campus, renovation of some buildings and further beautification efforts.

CLASS AGENTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Listed below are persons acting as class agents for the years indicated. No concerted effort has been put forth in securing someone to serve for the other years. This will be done soon. In the meantime, if you have information to share with us, and your class is not listed, drop us a line at the Alumni Office. We will get it to the right party to "spin the bars" into an interesting creation. If your agent is listed, why not write him or her a letter at once. — Editor

Rev. Freeman Comes To G-W

The Rev. Charles W. (Buddy) Freeman is the new College Minister at Gardner-Webb College. This new position was created beginning the second semester.

Rev. Freeman, a graduate of Gardner-Webb and Carson-Newman colleges, received his divinity degree from Southern Seminary.

His pastorate at Plains View Baptist Church (near Falkton in Cleveland County) terminated the middle of January. He is married to the former Nancy Jo Bridges and is a 1962 graduate of Gardner-Webb. He went on to Carson-Newman where he earned the B. A. Degree in 1964 and then to Southeastern Theological Seminary where he received the B. D. Degree.

Rev. Freeman will be in charge of all chapel programs and of the general religion and spiritual emphasis on campus.

Alumni Efforts Are Beginning

Alumni efforts are already "off and running" in organizational efforts. Mr. McManus states that Charlotte and Asheville have coordinated organizational sessions and numerous others are laying groundwork for meetings.

Be on the look out for the Gardner-Webb Alumni meeting in your area. It will be a wonderful opportunity to fellowship with old and new friends who have a similar background in education.

Response Is Warm

Your response to the December issue was made it a Happy New Year for those of us connected with the college and especially those producing THE WEB.

Many compliments have come our way on all the issues and especially the one at Christmas. It sure makes getting the publication out more challenging and enjoyable—knowing that the alumni appreciate it.

—GUY ADAMS, THIS TIME

Lee Named To Executive Committee

Mrs. Grace Lee, Director of the School of Nursing at Gardner-Webb College, has been appointed to the Executive Committee of the National League of Nursing's Council of Associate Degree Programs.

She is one of eight persons in the nation on this committee which has as its primary purpose the commission development and improvement of education for nursing. She has been director of the Gardner-Webb program since its beginning in August of 1965. Although only one year old in 1966, the Gardner-Webb program had already received notice of recognition from North Carolina and "Reasonable assurance of accreditation" from the National League of Nurses.

Mrs. Lee, who studies in Rutherfordton, has the M. S. Degree in Administration in Nursing Education from UNC-Chapel Hill and has done special study at Columbia University in New York. Her undergraduate work was at Florida State University and she also has a nursing diploma from the Rutherfordton Hospital School of Nursing at Rutherfordton—a school which was moved into the G-W program in 1965. She has worked as a head nurse in hospitals, as a nursing instructor, as a supervisor of nurses and was director of Nursing at Rutherfordton, Harrisburg, Va., and Gardner-Webb.

She has one son, Eddie E. Lee, and is of the Baptist faith.
